

The
COTTON BOLL

1950

DEDICATION

To Miss Martha Griffin, who through her cheerful cooperation and eager helpfulness has enriched our four years of high school, we dedicate this—our 1950 COTTON BOLL. She has encouraged us to acquire greater knowledge from reading and research and, at the same time, has ever been understanding of our personal affairs. For this service which comes from her true interest in us, we wish to express our deep appreciation.

COTTON BOLL PROPHECY

Ladies and Gentlemen, we are now bringing to you over station LUKE, the annual 1970 Rotary Bowl Game between Lexington and Jackson from Lexington High "TIGER STADIUM." As the crowd gathers, I recognize several of the fans to be members of the 1950 graduating class. It seems almost like a class reunion!

As I come in the gate I notice Imogene Townsend and Lyda Dutherson, who told me they were Commercial and English teachers, were selling tickets. There was Mary Beth Myracle, who came to Lexington as a Home Economics teacher hoping to encounter a husband, only found more old maids such as Arba McPhee, Mary Jean Webb, and Johnny Eads.

There seems to be a reserved section for such prominent couples as Mose and Bob Hart, Genevieve and Muri Garner, Lesser Mae and L. D. Cook, and Anita and James Bird.

And there goes the principal, why, it is Jerry Smith who always wanted to be a school teacher.

Here come the 1970 undefeated, unscored on Tigrers! They are led by their captain, Segerson, Harold's offspring. Coaches Billy Joe Havener and John Roberts have been building up for this game since Coach Billy Kelley is scouting for Notre Dame.

And now for the kickoff! Lexington kicking. Well! It seems I have seen that figure somewhere before. Why, it's Royal Wood's son. Who else would you expect? There it goes and Jackson tumbles on our ten yard line. Pharmacist Wayne Hinson's son recovers the ball. This seems to be a one-sided game! Why don't we look in the stands?

What's all the commotion over there? Why, it is Nellie and Bill Wheat with their nursery school. She always wanted a school and Brother! she's got one!

The secretaries, Jean Bradford, Denny Joy Bush, Faye Holmes, Edith Hart, and Berdine Kizer, are listening intently as Margie Anderson tells them what every secretary should know.

Number 53, son of cotton and petroleum expert, Johnny Pearson, has just been brought off the field. We are sure he will soon be sleight because there goes Dr. Ben Hay with his special nurses, Earelle Powers, Betty McPhee, and Betty Sue Martin.

And now at the half, the score stands 20-0 in favor of Lexington, Lexington's one hundred piece band led by their instructor, Vomer Little, is now forming an "L" on the field. The football boys in their places, are about to witness the crowning of their 1970 Football Queen. The maids, daughters of the former Peggy Patton and Dean Rhoads are now approaching the fifty-yard line. It seems history repeating itself for [unclear] (may the queen, daughter is Patsy and Ray Frazzelli, Patsy looks as thrilled as she did the day she was crowned.

COTTON BOLL PROPHECY

Many of the 1940 numbers, Wayland Cary, Clyde Hollowell, Samms D. Wheeler, Mersey Wheeler, Jimmy Fronabarger, and Billy Duke, have at last realized their ambition to be popstars. They are now selling popcorn!

There are quite a few prominent people here today. Our governor, John King Meadows, is surrounded by such notable movie actresses as Betty Stansford, Gilda Scott, and Lounelle Lewis. Lounelle is hardly recognizable since she has been "transformed" in Hollywood.

Hugh Fisher, a famous lawyer from Dallas, is unsuccessfully trying to convince Glenn Jarrell that he should be altar-bound. Gerald Spraks, Senator from Tennessee, greeting with a smile, all his former supporters, Denton Bush, Weldon Carnel, John D. Jowers, Jerry Moody, David Wheeler, and chicken-farmer, John Ray Zimmerman.

The armed forces are represented by P. F. C. James Threadgill and Seaman Recruit James Moala. New lights, installed by Leroy Gant, electrician, have replaced the old ones on our football field.

We are very happy that Excell Johnson and Lenora Mays are now able to be attending such social events as this one.

Mary Birchett, we are, has the new look. She has just returned from Paris. She was accompanied by Bobbe Brower, now a buyer for Macy's of New York.

Over there on the 20 yard line are the former Carol Jean Crook, Eva Katherine Lane, Jean Stewart, and Mary Garner discussing how to have that best word with their husbands. Jo Jean Garner, children's nurse, seems to have her hands full as she feeds her assistants, Mauree Wood, Orita Tucker, and Willie Clay Solomon, on the line of the children of the former Mary Rhodes, Jewell Faye Middleton, and Fannie Leonard.

Melba Walker, county librarian, is being quizzed by Mary Sue Venable, Mary Evelyn Webb, and Kathie Lee Woods, as to what new novels are available to read when the books are out.

Better late than never, here comes the postman, James Ross, bringing some wanted material to conversationalists, Thomas Edward Jowers. And now I thought of Jimmy Bradford pulling that 100 sugar and singing his own musical hit, "Mule Train."

Hey, look! about to begin! the Lexington Progress editor, seated beside me. Jim Allen will really make headlines with this.

Oh I almost forgot! still is how the game is going. Gee, it's over and the winner won 49-0. We have been scored upon, but not a right boys, just think where we were 20 years ago!
